Thor Missile Launched For First Time

MISSILE TEST CENTER, Cape Canaveral, Fla. (AP) — A ballistic sister of the highly regarded Jupiter Intermediate missile may possibly be counted today among the United States' rocket weapons.

A missile of estimated 70-foot length, believed to be the Air Force-developed Thor was successfully launched from a closely guarded Cape Canaveral yesterday afternoon.

Observers four to eight miles from the launching pads saw the white-bladed "rocket" roar straight up, part company with its booster section, then dive with the booster portion in long, seaward arcs marked by vapor trails. In the cloudless sky.

Test center officials would say only that a missile was launched. If it was the Thor, the flight, visible nearly four minutes, was the first reported instance of a Thor rocket leaving the ground.

Both the Jupiter, developed by the Army, and the Thor were designed as intermediate-range (1,500-mile) rockets. The Jupiter was called a spectacular success by Secretary of the Army Brucker after one of its pattern was launched Wednesday at Cape Canaveral.

Interest in both Jupiter and Thor missiles heightened with the Florida tests this week, the announcement by Russia of a successful intercontinental missile test, and reports that the Army believes strategic factors will make the shorter-range Jupiter a reliable answer to the Soviet rocket.

It was believed that only considerations for secrecy kept the Army from saying flatly that the Jupiter could be put in production within 30 days.

Russian launching of missiles of the type designed to have a 5,000-mile range was credited by U. S. officials, but they question whether the Red rockets are acceptably accurate, or out of the experimental stage.

No successful flight of an American intercontinental rocket has been reported. An Atlas weapon of that class was successfully launched at Cape Canaveral early this summer. It destroyed itself at an altitude of 6,000 feet when failure of a valve caused the big missile to wobble. A second Atlas is known to be ready for testing.

An ace in the hole in the field of intermediate range rockets is the United States' advantage in land bases abroad. Missiles launched from these bases would have much shorter routes to travel to Soviet territory than the distance a missile must travel from Soviet territory to the United States.

It was not learned whether yesterday's blastoff was undertaken as full-scale flying, which would imply a try for distance, or a test launching to get the rocket off the REAL HOSPITALITY was shown the Miss Hospitality team when it arrived here Thursday at Municipal Airport to advertise the state contest to be held tonight in Little Rock. A large crowd was on hand to greet the visitors who were served iced cold watermelon.

Miss Franks and the Hope delegation were piloted by Olin Whitley, the group included her mother, Mrs. Cline Franks and Sonny Brannan, president of the Hope Jaycees.

Blevins Will Open Schools September 9

Superintendent Norman Jones announces that the Blevins Public Schools, both white and Negro, will open Monday, September 9.

The white school will open on an all day schedule on Monday. The cafeteria will also be serving lunches on the opening day. Buses will run on the same schedule as last year.

A pre-school faculty meeting for white teachers will be held in the high school library beginning at 8:30 a.m. Thursday, September 5.

New faculty members include Mr. Robert L. Musgrave, Mrs. Gordon Beasley, Mrs. Jewellene Mullins, Mrs. Lester Brown, and Miss Voncile Gordon. The music program will be expanded by Mrs. Arthur Wimbley.

All students entering school for the first time or anyone else who has not been properly immunized against smallpox should do so before school opens. Beginners should also bring with them their birth certificate. Any child who will be six years old on or before January 1, 1958, should enter school on the opening date.

Principal Amos Evans of the Blevins Training School will announce more detailed plans for the opening of the colored school.

South Appreciates Thurmond's Try

WASHINGTON (AP) — Strom Thurmond's record low war against the Civil Rights Bill undoubtedly entrenches him strongly with the South, where he still counts, the possibility of a third party.

And perhaps, under the right combination of conditions, the filibustering South Carolina senator for 1948, the presidential nominee of a rebel Democratic faction.

If not that, Thurmond certainly won't hurt himself in his tries for another Senate term in 1960. That could have been the prime motive behind his futile, marathon speech.

Thurmond held the floor for 24 hours and 19 minutes. This eclipsed the previous filibuster record of 22 hours and 20 minutes set by Sen. Morse (D-Ore) in 1958.

Shortly after Thurmond yielded the floor at 1:30 p.m. (EDT) last night, the Senate passed the Civil Rights Bill, 30-15, and sent it to President Eisenhower.

Reports have been getting around South Carolina that Gov. George Bell Thurmond Jr. is thinking of the senatorial race in 1960.

So a speech like Thurmond's, capable of arousing the affection of rank-and-file Dixie voters, could be a political insurance policy calculated to pay off in three years.

Harvey V. Higley, administrator of the Veterans' Administration, said in a prepared address that the situation "gives us a great deal of concern."

He blamed the size of the wait list principally on a shortage of trained personnel.

Higley reported 53 per cent of the beds in VA hospitals are occupied by the mentally ill.

Told Many Vets Need Medical Care

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Between 16,000 and 17,000 ex-service men are on a waiting list for medical attention, the annual convention of Veterans of Foreign Wars was told today.

Harvey V. Higley, administrator of the Veterans' Administration, said in a prepared address that the situation "gives us a great deal of concern."

Although the compromise bill does not provide as much as Eisenhower asked, it is considerably above the amount first passed by the House.

The Senate had originally voted $3,695,610,000 in new funds plus $607,050,000 in reserve money for defense supports, $22 million in special assistance funds for the President, and $18 million for technical assistance.

The measure also includes 300 million dollars for the first year's operation of a fund which will be used for making economic development loans abroad. This is a new feature.

The increase also applies to mail subscriptions outside the Home towns area. The new distant-mail rates are: Year $15.60; six months $7.80; three months $3.90; one month $1.30.

There will be no change in Local Zone mail rates — Hempstead and adjacent counties. These rates were increased January 1, 1956, and will continue at their present level.

Hempstead's first bale of cotton was plowed Friday at Coddlett's steam gin on Ozan. The cotton was grown by Elmo Walker (upper right), a tenant farmer on Floyd Matthews' farm on Ozan Rd. Mr. Matthews, at left, said the cotton was planted April 15 and the first bloom was found June 17. Examining the cotton is Dick Watkins, right, of Watkins and Son, local cotton buyers.

Molotov Now Ambassador to Outer Mongolia

MOSCOW (AP) — V. M. Molotov, who was international prominence as chief of all Soviet diplomats, was named today to the minor diplomatic post of ambassador to Outer Mongolia.

The government announcement of the new job for the former premier and foreign minister was the second assignment of a lesser in the recent Kremlin shakeup by Nikita Khrushchev. The Soviet Communist party chief earlier sent former Premier Georgi Malenkov off to run a power station in remote Kazakhstan, just west of Mongolia.

Molotov's appointment was announced here by the government newspaper Izvestia.

As ambassador to the Mongolian People's Republic, Molotov technically will handle Russian foreign relations with a nation of somewhat more than a million people. A majority of the population are tent-dwelling horsemen, little advanced from the days when Genghis Khan set forth from Mongolia to scour the civilized world.

At '67, Molotov is reported in poor health. He is one of the few remaining Zolot Bolshevik companions of Stalin. His record includes the premier's post from 1930 to 1941 and foreign minister most of the time from 1939 to 1953.

After Stalin died in 1953, Molotov began to slip from power. He was minister of state control when the July turnover came.

Molotov and Malenkov lost their Communist party and government jobs after Khrushchev accused them of plotting against his leadership.

Diplomats in London regarded Molotov's assignment as a political joke, aimed at keeping him away from Moscow contacts. The job was considered as having little importance since diplomatic relations between Russia and Outer Mongolia are a mere formality.

John McLeod, of Radio station KXAR, will be Master of Ceremonies; Author Holloman will be the organ and Miss Grecia Wortham, the reigning Miss Hempstead County, will crown the winner.

In an interview in Thibodaux, capital of the Maryland-sized nation, the Atlantic Seaboard, Shehu said his government wants mutual relations with the United States, the New York Times reported today.

The deadline for entering the contest is Wednesday, Sept. 4th. All entries must be in by that date, and contestants' pictures made to publish in the Star.

The winner will receive a gold loving cup from Henry Seaman, manager of the Saenger, and many gift certificates from the members of the Lions Club. Contestants will be guests of the Lions Club at their weekly luncheon on Monday, September 9th. Arrangements are being made to have the girls on KCMC TV, sometime before the contest.

The Lions Club is selling advance tickets to the contest and will receive half of the advance sales, the proceeds to go to the new Hope Youth Center building fund. Admission to the theatre that night will be 75¢ for adults and 25¢ for children.
